

Dear colleagues and students,

Online Teaching from 24 January to 30 January 2022

In view of the rapid surge in COVID-19 cases in the community, the University has decided that all classes be conducted online from 24 January to 30 January 2022 (both days inclusive). During this period, all on-campus face-to-face teaching and learning activities will be suspended.

Classes with practical/lab-based work such as those held in studios and labs with face-to-face instructions will be suspended during this period. Make-up classes will be arranged after the resumption of face-to-face instructions where possible.

The campus will remain open during this period. Opening hours of various facilities will be shortened (Please click here for details).

These measures are put in place to protect your health and safety while minimizing the impact on teaching and learning activities by the pandemic. We will monitor the situation closely and make an updated announcement closer to the end of the Chinese New Year break on 6 February 2022.

May I wish everyone good health and please take good care of yourself during this difficult time.

Best regards,

Albert Chau
Vice-President (Teaching and Learning)
